

III. The Abortive Conquest of Canada

- October 1775, British burned Falmouth (Portland), Maine
- In autumn, rebels undertook a two-pronged invasion of Canada:
 - Successful assault on Canada would add a 14th colony and deprive Britain of valuable base for striking the colonies in revolt
 - Invasion north was undisguised offensive warfare

 Bitter fighting persisted in colonies: • January 1776 British set fire to Norfolk, Va. March 1776 British forced to evacuate Boston - In South, rebels won two victories: • February 1776 against 15,000 Loyalists at Moore's Creek Bridge in North Carolina • June 1776 against an invading fleet at Charleston

IV. Thomas Paine Preaches Common Sense

- Loyalty to the empire was deeply ingrained:
 - Americans continued to believe they were part of a transatlantic community
 - Colonial unity was weak
 - Open rebellion was dangerous
 - As late as January 1776, the king's health was being toasted—"God save the king"
- Gradually colonists were shocked into recognizing necessity to separate.

IV. Thomas Paine Preaches Common Sense (cont.)

- 1776 Common Sense by Thomas Paine:
 - One of most influential pamphlets ever published
 - Began with treatise on nature of government
 - Argued only lawful states were those that derive "their just powers from the consent of the governed"
 - As for king, he was nothing but "the Royal Brute of Great Britain"
 - 120,000 copies were sold in one week

•Written by Thomas Paine in Jan. 1776.....

•Came to America in 1774 from England and got caught up in the Revolutionary Spirit

•Wrote a 50 page pamphlet that would convince many Americans that King George was a tyrant and declaring independence from Great Britain was our only choice.

In the following pages I offer nothing more than simple facts, plain arguments, and common sense..... The sun never shined on a cause of greater worth. "Tis not the concern of a day, a year, or an age; posterity (future generations) are involved in the contest.....

Much has been said for the advantages of reconciliation with England. I have heard it asserted by some, that as America hath flourished under her former connection with Great Britain, that the same connection is necessary towards her future happiness....Nothing can be more wrong. We may as well assert, that because a child has thrived upon milk, that it is never to have meat.

I challenge the warmest advocate for reconciliation to show a single advantage that this continent can reap by being connected with Great Britain. Should an island rule a continent?

Our corn will fetch its price in any market in Europe....

But the injuries and disadvantages we sustain by that connection are without number....

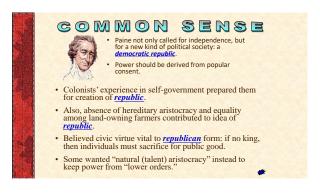

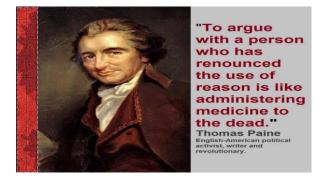

Any dependence on Great Britain tends directly involve this continent in European wars and quarrels, and sets us at odds with nations who would otherwise seek our friendship......

Everything that is right or natural pleads for separation..."TIS TIME TO PART"...

The king has shown himself an enemy to liberty and discovered a thirst for arbitrary power. Is he, or is he not, a proper man to say to the colonies. "You shall make no laws but what I please"? The whole power of the crown will be exerted to keep this continent as low and humble as possible......

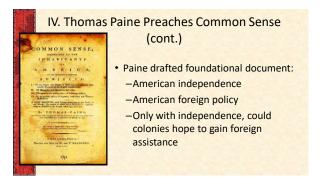

Reconciliation and ruin are nearly related....
TIS TIME TO PART

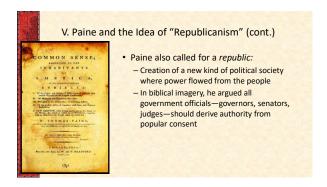

V. Paine and the Idea of "Republicanism" (cont.)

- Paine was not first to champion republican government:
 - Classical Greece and Rome

M , B R I G A,

- Revived in 17th century Renaissance
- Appealed to British politicians critical of excessive power in hands of king and his advisers
- American colonists interpreted royal acts as part of monarchical conspiracy

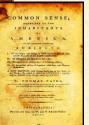

V. Paine and the Idea of "Republicanism" (cont.)

- · Paine's summons to create a republic fell on receptive ears:
 - New Englanders practiced a kind of republicanism in town meetings and annual elections
- · Most Americans considered citizen "virtue" fundamental to any successful republican government

V. Paine and the Idea of "Republicanism" (cont.) OMMON SENSE,

- · Individuals in a republic:
 - must sacrifice personal self-interest to public good
 - collective good of "the people" mattered more than private rights and interests of individuals
- Paine inspired contemporaries to view America as fertile ground for cultivation of civic virtue.

V. Paine and the Idea of Republicanism (cont.)

- · Not all Patriots agreed with Paine's ultrademocratic republicanism:
 - Some favored republic ruled by a "natural aristocracy" of talent
 - wanted an end to hereditary aristocracy, but not an end to all social hierarchy
 - · were conservative republicans who wanted stability of social order
- Contest over American republicanism would continue for next 100 years

VI. Jefferson's "Explanation" of Independence

- · On June 7, 1776, Richard Henry Lee of Virginia moved:
 - "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be free and independent states"
 - motion was adopted on July 2, 1776
 - motion was formal "declaration" of independence by colonies

Richard Henry Lee

Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death

Patrick Henry Patrick Henry (1736-1799) Revolutionary War orator, radical and statesman. In a speech urging armed resistance against the British. Speech was given in March of 1775. There is no retreat but in submission and slavery! Our chains are forged! Their clanking may be heard on the plains of Boston! The war is inevitable and let it come! I repeat it, sir, let it come.

It is in vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. Gentlemen may cry, Peace, Peace -- but there is no peace. The war is actually begun! The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms!

give Me Liberty or Give Me Death

Our brethren are already in the field! Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God!

I know not what course others may take but as for me:

"Give me liberty or give me death".

VI. Jefferson's "Explanation" of Independence (cont.)

- · An inspirational appeal was needed:
 - To enlist other British colonies in the Americas
 - To invite assistance from foreign nations
 - To rally resistance at home
- Congress appointed a committee to prepare a formal statement:
 - Task of drafting fell to Thomas Jefferson
 - He was fully qualified for it

VI. Jefferson's "Explanation of Independence (cont.)

- The Declaration of Independence:
 - Formally approved by Congress on July 4, 1776
 - Had universal appeal by invoking "natural rights" of humankind—not just British rights
 - Argued that because king had flouted these rights, the colonists were justified in cutting ties
 - Set forth long list of presumably tyrannous misdeeds of George III
 - Declaration had universal impact

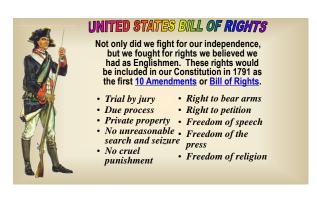

Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and... that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations... evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government...

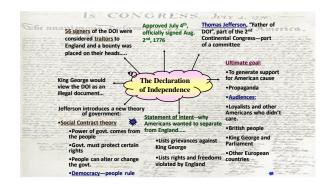

Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies... The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States.

Authority of Government All people are born free and equal with natural rights to life, liberty and property Purpose of Government Ilmited Government Equality Limited Government All men are created equal

SOCIAL CONTRACT THEORY

John Locke was an English philosopher during the late 1680s.

•He wrote several books on how people should be governed.

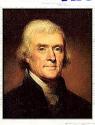

•His ideas influenced Thomas Jefferson.

The power of government comes from the people....We give the government certain powers to force people to do things for the common good of the community.......If the government does not reflect the will of the people, than the people can change it......

THOMAS JEFFERSON

- Plantation owner from Virginia
- •Renaissance man
- Owned slaves
- •Representative to the 2nd Continental Congress from Virginia
- •Father of the Declaration of Independence.

The Virginia Declaration of Rights-June 12, 1776

Section 1. That all men are by nature equally free and independent and have certain inherent rights... namely, the enjoyment of life and liberty, with the means of acquiring and possessing property, and pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety.

Section 2. That all power is vested in, and consequently derived from, the people;

Section 7. That all power of suspending laws, or the execution of laws, by any authority, without consent of the representatives of the people, is injurious to their rights and ought not to be exercised.

or Another rough draft
*The slavery passage

John Adams account as to why Thomas Jefferson

Adams: The subcommittee met. Jefferson proposed to me to make the draft. I said,

Adams: I will not, You should do it.

Jefferson: Oh! No. Why will you not? You ought to do it.

Adams: I will not. Jefferson: Why?

Jefferson: What can be your reasons?

Adams: Reason first, you are a Virginian, and a Virginian ought to appear at the head of this business. Reason second, I am obnoxious, suspected, and unpopular. You are very much otherwise. Reason third, you can write ten times better than I can.

Jefferson: 'Well, if you are decided, I will do as well as I can.'

Adams: 'Very well. When you have drawn it up, we will have a meeting.'

VII. Patriots and Loyalists • War of Independence was a war within a war: - Loyalists—colonists loyal to king who fought American rebels • called "Tories" after dominant political factions in Britain - Patriots—rebels who also fought British redcoats • called "Whigs" after opposition factions in Britain Was there a 3rd Choice?

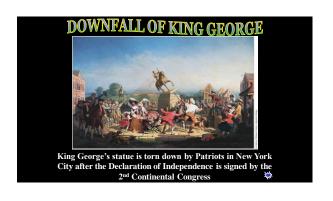

VII. Patriots and Loyalists (cont.) • American Revolution was a minority movement: – Many colonists either apathetic or neutral – Patriot militias played critical role: • took on task of "political education," sometimes by coercion • served as agents of Revolutionary ideas

VII. Patriots and Loyalists (cont.) • Loyalists: — About 16 percent of American people — Families were often split — Many were people of education and wealth — More numerous among older generation — Included king's officers and beneficiaries — Included Anglican clergy and congregations • Virginia was notable exception

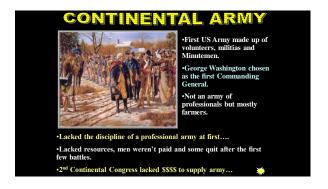

VII. Patriots and Loyalists (cont.) • Loyalists entrenched in: - aristocratic New York City and Charlestown - Quaker Pennsylvania and New Jersey - were less numerous in New England • Rebels most numerous where Presbyterianism and Congregationalism flourished

VIII. The Loyalist Exodus • Before Declaration in 1776, persecution of Loyalists was relatively mild: - Some faced brutality (tarring and feathering; riding astride fence rails) - Harsher treatment began after Declaration • were regarded as traitors • were roughly handled; some imprisoned; a few noncombatants hung - No wholesale reign of terror

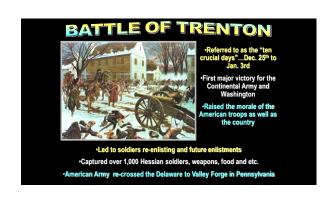

VIII. The Loyalists Exodus (cont.) • 80 thousand Loyalists were driven out or fled • Several hundred thousand were permitted to stay • Estates of fugitives were confiscated and sold • Some 50,000 Loyalists fought for British: - Helped King's cause by serving as spies - by inciting Indians • British did not make effective use of Loyalists

IX. General Washington at Bay Washington: - Could only muster 18 000 ill-trained troops to meet Brit

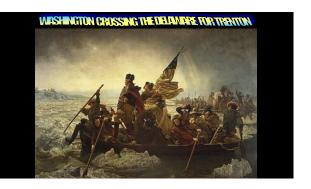

- Could only muster 18,000 ill-trained troops to meet British invaders at New York, March 1776
- Disaster befell Americans at Battle of Long Island, summer and fall of 1776
- Washington escaped to Manhattan Island, finally reaching Delaware River
- Patriot cause was at low ebb as rebels fled across river

IX. General Washington at Bay (cont.) - General William Howe did not speedily crush demoralized American forces - Washington stealthily recrossed Delaware River at Trenton on December 26, 1776 - Surprised and captured 1,000 Hessians - A week later he defeated small British force at Princeton - These two lifesaving victories revealed "Old Fox" Washington at his military best

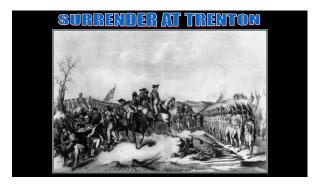

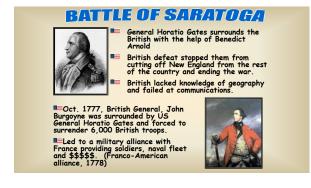

X. Burgoyne's Blundering Invasion London officials adopted intricate scheme to capture Hudson River valley in 1777: If successful, would sever New England from rest of the states and paralyze American cause: General John Burgoyne would push down Lake Champlain route from Canada General Howe's troops would advance up Hudson and meet Burgoyne near Albany A third force, under Colonel Barry St. Leger, would come from west via Lake Ontario and Mohawk valley

X. Burgoyne's Blundering Invasion (cont.) • British did not reckon with General Arnold: - came along St. Lawrence to Lake Champlain area where he assembled a small fleet - his fleet was destroyed, but time had been won • Without Arnold, British would have recaptured Fort Ticonderoga: - if Burgoyne could have started there (instead of Montreal) he would have been successful

X. Burgoyne' Blundering Invasion (cont.) • Washington transferred army to vicinity of Philadelphia: - There he was defeated in two battles at Brandywine Creek and at Germantown • General Howe settled down in Philadelphia and left Burgoyne to flounder in upper New York • Washington retired to Valley Forge • Trapped, Burgoyne surrendered at Saratoga to Gen. Horatio Gates on October 17, 1777

X. Burgoyne's Blundering Invasion (cont.)

- · Saratoga ranks high among decisive battles of both America and world history:
 - Victory revived faltering colonial cause
 - Even more important, made possible urgently needed foreign aid from France, which in turn helped ensure American independence

XI. Revolution in Diplomacy?

- France's role in the Revolution:
 - France hoped to regain former prestige:
 - · loss in Seven Years' War rankled deeply
 - America's revolutionaries badly needed help to throw off British:
 - needed to seal an alliance with France against common foe

After Saratoga (An Alliance With France)

- Britain offered the Americans a measure for home rule—everything they sought but independence.
- France was finally persuaded to enter the war.
 - Louis XVI's ministers claimed this the best time to act, b/c if Britain regained control, she might try to capture the French West Indies for war compensation.
 - Now was the time to strike, rather than risk a stronger Britain with

 - In 1778, France offered an alliance treaty with, offering everything Britain had plus recognition of independence.

 The Americans accepted the agreement with caution, since France was pro-Catholic.
 - Since the Americans needed aid, they'd take it.

XI. Revolution in Diplomacy? (cont.)

- American rebels also harbored revolutionary ideas about international affairs:
- wanted end to colonialism and mercantilism
- supported free trade and freedom of seas
- wanted rule of law, not raw power, to arbitrate affairs of nations

XI. Revolution in Diplomacy? (cont.)

- Summer of 1776, Continental Congress drafted a Model Treaty:
 - Guide commissioners dispatched to France
 - John Adams, one of chief authors, described basic principles:
 - "1. No political connection. . .
 - 2. No military connection. . .
 - · 3. Only a commercial connection."
 - These were remarkable self-denying restrictions
 - · Infused idealism into American foreign policy

XI. Revolution in Diplomacy? (cont.)

- Benjamin Franklin negotiated treaty in Paris:
- He was determined that his appearance should herald diplomatic revolution
- He shocked royal court
- Ordinary Parisians adored him as a specimen of new democratic social order
- The British now offered a measure allowing American home rule within the empire

XI. Revolution in Diplomacy? (cont.)

This was essentially what colonists had asked for—except independence:

- On February 6, 1778, France offered a treaty of alliance
- Young republic concluded its first entangling military alliance and would soon regret it
- Treaty with France constituted official recognition of America's independence
- · Both bound themselves to secure America's freedom

XII. The Colonial War Becomes a Wider War

- England and France came to blows in 1778
- Shot fired at Lexington widened into global conflagration:
 - Spain entered in 1779 as did Holland
 - weak maritime neutrals of Europe began to demand their rights (see Table 8.1)
 - Russia's Catherine the Great organized Armed Neutrality—lined up remaining European neutrals in an attitude of passive hostility toward Britain

XII. The Colonial War Becomes a Wider War (cont.)

- Fighting in Europe and North America as well as South America, Caribbean, and Asia:
 - Americans deserve credit for keeping war going until 1778 with secret French aid
 - their independence not achieved until conflict became a multipower world war too much for Britain to handle
 - from 1778 to 1783, France provided rebels with guns, money, equipment, and armed forces

- France's entrance:
 - · Forced British to change basic strategy
 - They had counted on blockading colonial coast and commanding seas
 - French now had powerful fleet in American waters
 - British decided to evacuate Philadelphia and concentrate strength in New York City
 - In June 1778, redcoats were attacked by Washington
 - Battle was indecisive and Washington remained in New York area

XIII. Blow and Counterblow

- 1780: French army of 6000 regular troops, under commander Comte de Rochambeau arrived in Newport
 - French gold and goodwill help melt suspicions
 - No real military advantage yet from French reinforcements
 - 1780 General Benedict Arnold turned traitor
 - British planned to roll up colonies, starting in Loyalist South (See Map 8.2).

XIII. Blow and Counterblow (cont.)

- Georgia overrun in 1778-1779
- Charleston fell in 1780
- Warfare intensified in Carolinas
- 1781: American riflemen wiped out British at King's Mountain, then defeated a smaller force at Cowpens

- By standing and then retreating, he exhausted his foe, General Cornwallis, in vain pursuit
- Greene succeeded in clearing most of Georgia and South Carolina of British troops

XIV. The Land Frontier and the Sea Frontier

- · West was ablaze during war:
 - Indian allies of England attacked colonists
 - 1777 was known as "bloody year" on frontier:
 - Two nations of Iroquois Confederacy, Oneidas and Tuscarora, sided with Americans
 - Senecas, Mohawks, Cayugas, and Onondagas joined
- Encouraged by chief Joseph Brant, who believed victorious Britain would restrain white expansion west In 1784, pro-British Iroquois forced to sign Treaty of
- Fort Stanwix:
- First treaty between U.S. and an Indian nation - Under its terms, Indians ceded most of their land

XIV. The Land Frontier and the Sea Frontier (cont.)

 1778-1779, he quickly captured Kaskaskia, Cahokia, and Vincennes (see Map 8.3)

Clark's admirers have argued his success later forced British to cede region north of Ohio River to United States at peace table in Paris

XIV. The Land Frontier and the Sea Frontier (cont.)

- Tiny force never made dent in Britain's massive fleet
- · Chief contribution was destroying British merchant shipping
- · Carried war into waters around British Isles

XIV. The Land Frontier and the Sea Frontier (cont.)

Privateers:

- Privately owned armed ships-legalized pirates
- Authorized by Congress to attack enemy ships
- 1,000 American privateers responded to call of patriotism and profit, with about 70,000 men
- Captured some 600 British prizes, while British captured same number of merchantmen and privateers

XIV. The Land Frontier and the Sea Frontier (cont.)

- Privateering was not an unalloyed asset:
 - · Diverted manpower from main war
 - · Involved Americans in speculation and graft
- Privateering was also good:
 - · Brought in urgently needed gold
 - · Harassed enemy
 - Raised American morale
 - Ruined British shipping
 - Shippers and manufacturers wanted to end war

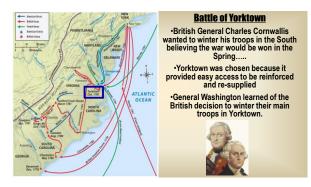

XV. Yorktown and the Final Curtain

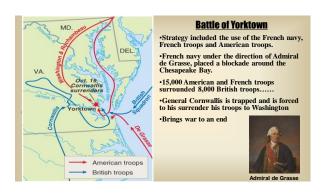

- One of darkest periods of war was 1780-1781, before last decisive victory:
 - Government was virtually bankrupt
 - · declared it would repay debt at only 2.5 cents per dollar
 - Despair prevailed:
 - · sense of unity withered
 - mutinous sentiments infected army

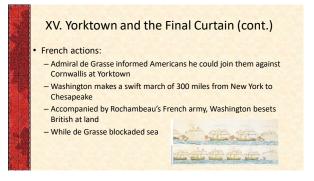

XV. Yorktown and the Final Curtain (cont.) • Cornwallis blundered into a trap: - After futile operations in Virginia, he fell back to Chesapeake Bay at Yorktown: • Awaited seaborne supplies and reinforcements • Assumed Britain still controlled seas • During this period British naval superiority slipped away

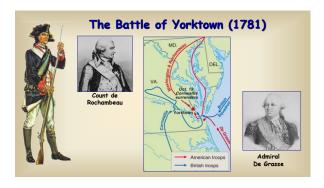

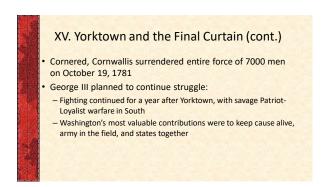

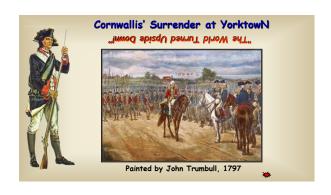

XVI. Peace at Paris Aftermath of war: — Many Britons weary of war — Suffered loses in India and West Indies — Island of Minorca in Mediterranean fell — Lord North's ministry collapsed in March 1782 temporarily ending George III's personal rule — Whig ministry, favorable to Americans, replaced Tory regime of

- American negotiators Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and John Jay gathered at Paris:
 - Instructed to make no separate peace and to consult with French allies at all stages
 - American representatives chafed under directive
 - Knew it had been written by subservient Congress under pressure from French Foreign Office

Where are the British??

• France in difficult position:

Lord North

- Had induced Spain to enter war
- Spain coveted immense trans-Allegheny area
- France desired independent United States, but wanted to keep New Republic east of Allegheny Mountains
- A weak America would be easier to manage in promoting French interests and policy
- France was paying heavy price to win America's independence and wanted her money's worth

XVI. Peace at Paris (cont.) John Jay was unwilling to play French game: Secretly made overtures to London London came to terms with Americans Preliminary treaty signed in 1782 Formal Treaty of Paris signed in 1783: Britain recognized independence of United States Granted generous boundaries: to Mississippi (west), to Great Lakes (north), and to Spanish Florida (south) Yankees retained access to fisheries of Newfoundland

Treaty of Paris

- The Patriot victory at Yorktown, however, convinced the British that the war was too costly.
- In March 1782, King George III appointed new ministers who were prepared to give Americans their independence.
- Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and John Jay represented the United States in the peace talks in Paris.
- The talks began in April 1782, and six months later the British accepted a preliminary agreement written by the Americans.
- The American Congress ratified, or approved, a preliminary treaty in April 1783.

- Under the treaty, the United States...
- agreed that British merchants could collect debts owed by Americans.
- stated that the Congress would "earnestly recommend" to the states that property taken from Loyalists be returned to them. Most of this property was never returned, however.

XVI. Peace at Paris (cont.) - American concessions: • Loyalists not to be further persecuted • Congress was to recommend to states that: - confiscated Loyalist property be restored - debts owed to British creditors be paid - British concessions: • Accept defeat in North America • Ending war allowed England to rebuild The Recondilation Between Britannia and Her Daughter America - America (represented by an Indian) is invited to biuss (kiss) her mother.

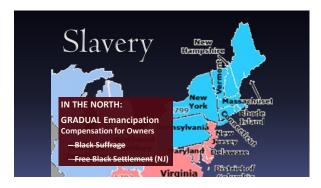

XVII. A New Nation Legitimized

- British terms were liberal:
 - Granted enormous trans-Appalachian area
 - In spirit, Americans made a separate peace—contrary to French alliance
 - France relieved with end of costly conflict
 - America alone gained from world-girdling war:
 - Began national career with splendid territorial birthright and priceless heritage
